H. H. THE NIZAM'S GUARANTEED STATE RAILWAY Co., Ld.
ADVERTISING AT RAILWAY STATIONS.

THE PROPRIETOR of the Bombay Gazette Press, having leased from the NIZAM'S STATE RAILWAY COMPANY the exclusive right of advertising at all the Railway Stations belonging to the Company, is prepared to contract with parties desirous of posting notices or advertisements on the lines.
The Cantonment of SECUNDERABAD, as is well known, contains the largest military garrison in India—a garrison comprising over 5,000 British and native troops. Contiguous to it is the Cantonment of BOLARUM, garrisoned by two regiments and one battery of the Hyderabad Contingent, all officered by Europeans. South of Secunderabad, about 4 miles, are the suburbs of Hyderabad, containing the Nizam's regular troops, about 5,000 in number, officered mostly by Europeans—besides a large civil population. It would manifestly be advantageous to firms to advertise at the stations on the above railway, the most important of which are SECUNDERABAD, HYDRABAD, GANGAWARUM, and TANDUR.
The announcements may be in English or in any of the NATIVE LANGUAGES.
INSURANCE COMPANIES, SHIPPING COMPANIES, HOTEL-KEEPERS, MERCHANTS, TRADERS, and others who wish to force their business on the notice of the public, all alike value the privilege of Railway Station Advertising.
There is no reason why the privilege should not be also specially valuable to Advertisers in India looking to the great and increasing number of Native Railway Passengers on the two trunk lines in Western India. Native Merchants, Traders, &c., seeing that they have the privilege of advertising in their own language, would find the publication of their announcements at Railway Stations an infallible means of extending their business.
Advertisers can select the Station at which they wish their Placards posted, and may advertise for any period that may be agreed on. The charges have been fixed on an extremely moderate scale to encourage Advertisers to make a liberal use of the new means now offered of making announcements known to the public.
Placards, according to the taste of Advertisers may be printed at moderate charge in ENGLISH or any of the NATIVE LANGUAGES at the Bombay Gazette Press. Estimates on application.

RATES.

Board not exceeding 2 feet long and 2 feet broad Re. 1 per month. For every additional square foot annas 2.
Thus a firm exhibiting a board, say 4 square feet will have the advantage of having their business advertisement read by thousands of Passengers on one station platform for the trifling monthly expenditure of Re. 1. Parties advertising on six stations or more will be allowed a discount of ten per cent. twelve Stations or more, twenty-five per cent.
The boards to be delivered at the Bombay Gazette Office, whence they will be sent by the Lessee to the various stations selected by the Advertiser. In the event of the contract terminating, the boards will be brought back to Bombay at the expense and risk of the advertiser.
Special arrangements for long periods.
For further particulars apply to the Manager of the "Bombay Gazette" Office, Esplanade Road, Fort

TREACHER and Co. Limited, desire to call special attention to their Clarets, of which they are the largest Importers in India. The Wines are imported direct from Bordeaux, and the Company, by reason of the immense demand for their Clarets, are able to place unusually large Orders with original producers. This consideration, and the position they hold as cash buyers, gives them a certain preference in the Wine Market, which their long experience enables them to turn to the utmost advantage, and they are consequently able to offer to their clients Clarets of a very superior order at unusually low prices :—

IMPORTANT NOTICE.
HUBBUCK'S PATENT WHITE ZINC PAINT.
TO Architects, Contractors, Dock Companies, Mill Owners, Railway Companies, Ship Owners and all who are desirous of obtaining, a reliable and durable Paint, THOMAS HUBBUCK AND SON (the original Patentees of White Zinc Paint) beg to inform the above that "HUBBUCK'S GENUINE PATENT WHITE ZINC PAINT AND OILS" can always be obtained of the undermentioned well known Firms in Bombay. This Paint has successfully stood the test of all climates for many years, and has an ever increasing demand ; it is far superior in pureness of colour, in body, in fineness, and lasting properties to any other Paint ; retains its color, and when mixed with HUBBUCK'S PALE BOILED LINSEED OIL does not crack or blister, and is not effected by atmospheric changes, salt water, or gas). THOMAS HUBBUCK AND SON knowing the importance of such a Paint to the above, trust their Friends will continue to use this world-renowned HUBBUCK'S PATENT WHITE ZINC PAINT, the quality of which never varies.
HUBBUCK'S PALE BOILED LINSEED OIL.
THOS. HUBBUCK & SON desire to call attention to their special PALE BOILED LINSEED OIL. This OIL is paler than Raw Linseed Oil and therefore does not discolor White or other delicate colors. By their patent process all the fatty matter (which renders Paint non-drying and sticky) is extracted making the Paint mixed with this Oil dry quickly with a perfectly hard and smooth surface, prevents blistering, and is therefore consequently much more durable. This Oil has been successfully in use for many years in China, Japan, the West Indies, the Straits Settlements, Burmah, &c. One trial will show the importance of this Oil in a climate like India, and will cause it to become in general demand through India. THOS. HUBBUCK & SON ship only GENUINE OILS and TURPENTINE, and therefore, trust their friends will see when ordering HUBBUCK'S PAINTS that they also get HUBBUCK'S GENUINE OILS and TURPENTINE. Good Paint is destroyed by using an inferior HO.

ADVERTISING AT RAILWAY STATIONS
THE Proprietor of the "BOMBAY GAZETTE" Press, having leased from the
G. I. P. RAILWAY COMPANY,
The NIZAM STATE RAILWAY,
AND
The BHOWNAGAR-GONDAL RAILWAY COMPANY
The exclusive right of advertising at all the Railway Stations belonging to these Companies, is prepared to contract with parties desirous of posting Notices or Advertisement, on the lines.
The announcements may be in English or in any of the Native Languages.
The advantages which Railway Stations present as a means of bringing intimations of all kind before the public have been demonstrated in England by the extensive use which is made by Advertisers, of every station, great and small, along every one in the United Kingdom.
INSURANCE COMPANIES, SHIPPING COMPANIES, HOTEL-KEEPERS, MERCHANTS, TRADERS and others who wish to force their business on the notice of the public, all alike value the privilege of Railway Station Advertising.
And as nearly ALL TRAVELLERS ARRIVING IN INDIA NOW LAND AT BOMBAY and proceed by Rail, Placards exhibited at the different stations are every day becoming more and more valuable as a means of bringing the Advertisers' business to the notice of the public.
On the NIZAM STATE RAILWAY the Cantonment of Secunderabad, as is well known, contains the largest military garrison in India, a garrison comprising over 5,000 British and Native troops. Contiguous to it is the Cantonment of Bolaram garrisoned by two Regiments and one Battery of the Hyderabad Contingent, all officered by Europeans. South of Secunderabad, about four miles, are the suburbs of Hyderabad containing the Nizam's Regular Troops, about 5,000 in number, officered mostly by Europeans, besides a large civil population. It would manifestly be a source of profit to firms to advertise at these Stations, the most important of which are Secunderabad, Hyderabad, Gangawaram and Tandur.
Orders for exhibiting Advertisement Boards on the B. B. and C. I. Railway Stations will also be received at this Office.
RATES.
Boards not exceeding 2 feet long and 2 feet broad Re. 1 per month. For every additional square foot annas 2.
Thus a firm exhibiting a board, say 4 feet square, will have the advantage of having their Business Advertisement read by thousands of passengers on one station platform for the trifling monthly expenditure of Re. 1. Parties advertising on six stations or more will be allowed a discount of ten per cent. ; on twelve stations or more twenty-five per cent.
Special arrangements for long periods.
The boards to be delivered at the "BOMBAY GAZETTE" OFFICE, whence they will be sent by the Lessee to the various stations selected by the Advertiser. In the event of the contract terminating, the boards will be brought back to Bombay at the expense and risk of the Advertiser.
Advertisers can select the stations, on the four lines at which they wish their Placards posted, and may advertise for any period that may be agreed on. The charges have been fixed on an extremely moderate scale to encourage Advertisers to make a liberal use of the new means now offered of making announcements known to the public.
Placards, according to the taste of Advertisers, may be printed at moderate charges in English of any of the Native languages at the "BOMBAY GAZETTE" Press. Estimates on application.
For further particulars apply to The MANAGER, "BOMBAY GAZETTE" OFFICE, Rampart Row, Fort.

It was not necessary to ask Mr. Clemens (Mark Twain) what he thinks of Kipling's tales. "It would be a good thing," said he, "to read Mr. Kipling's writings for their style alone, if there were no story back of it. But, as you say, there always is a story there, and a powerfully interesting one generally. How people have gotten to read and talk about his stories! Why, when a young man, not yet twenty-four years of age, succeeds in the way Kipling has succeeded, it simply shows, doesn't it? that the general public has a strong appreciation of a good thing when it gets hold of one. His great charm to me is the way he swings nervous English. It is wonderful. That, it seems to me, is one great secret of the hold he takes on his readers. They can understand what he is at. He is simple and direct."

It goes without saying Mr. and Mrs. Hudson and Company will meet with an enthusiastic welcome back to Bombay on Wednesday.

A DISHONEST BUTLER.—Before Mr. Shewshunkar Govindram yesterday, at the Esplanade Police Courts, Antone Fernandes, a Goanese butler, of the s. s. Labourdonnais, now lying in the Prince's Dock, was charged by Inspector Lee-Smith with the theft of two table napkins, valued at Rs. 4. Mons. Louis Guigonet, the chief steward of the vessel, said the property formed part of the ship's stores, and was consigned to the French Company. The prisoner was arrested at the main gate of the Prince's Dock by a police sepoy, who took him on board the steamer, where the napkins were identified. Prisoner pleaded guilty, and was sentenced to two weeks' rigorous imprisonment. His Worship, remarking that owing to the numerous thefts which were perpetrated by his (the accused's) class of people in the Docks, the officers of vessels would in time refuse to engage their services.

He had a single-barrelled gun and a number of gun fittings in his possession. The prisoner, in defence, said he had formerly obtained a licence, but had forgotten to bring it with him when he left Jeypore. His Worship, in fining him Rs. 10 with the alternative of one week's imprisonment, ordered the gun and fittings to be made over to the Commissioner of Police until the accused obtained a licence for the same. As the prisoner had only Rs. 6 with him his Worship generously paid the balance of Rs. 4 out of his own pocket.

EVADING THE OPIUM LICENSE.—At the Girgaum Police Court yesterday, Mr. Rustom Pestonjee, head inspector of Abkari, Opium Department, charged Mahomedally Kherati, a coffee shop-keeper, at Dubhoo Street, and his servant, named Hussain Sikh Ramzan, before Mr. Richardson, the Acting Second Presidency Magistrate, with selling opium in contravention of section 9, Act I., of 1878, and aiding and abetting each other in the commission of the said offence. It appears that Mr. Rustom Pestonjee, upon certain information he had received, engaged a man, named Dawood Jina, and sent him with some marked money to the shop of the first accused to purchase some opium. Dawood went to the shop, and purchased one anna's worth of opium, and handed over the marked money. Immediately Dawood obtained the opium he gave the signal to the inspector, who went into the shop, and took charge of the opium Dawood had purchased, and also found the marked money in the possession of the accused persons. On searching the shop, three tolas of opium was found concealed under a board in the shop. The Magistrate convicted the two accused, and sentenced them to pay a fine of Rs. 25 each, with the alternative of 25 days' simple imprisonment each.

SAD SEQUEL TO THE STAMP FORGERY CASE.—A Hindoo clerk, named Ganesh Gopal Bhut, who was employed in the forwarding parcel branch in the Bombay Presidency Post Office, has committed suicide by drowning himself in a tank, adjoining a Hindoo temple, at Kallian. At the time the investigations in connection with the stamp forgery case were being conducted by the Bombay Detective Police the deceased happened to be on leave. Consequent upon a statement which Moroo Govind Kelkar, the second accused implicated in the stamp forgery case, made to the Detective Police that he sold forged stamps to the deceased at the rate of twelve annas each, the postal authorities deemed it advisable to place Ganesh with some others under suspension pending departmental enquiries. On Inspector Morar Rao learning this he obtained a search-warrant at the Girgaum Police Court from Mr. Richardson, the Magistrate, on the 11th of September. The house of the deceased was forthwith searched, but nothing was found to confirm the statement made by the second accused. When Ganesh Gopal Bhut heard that he was under suspension he left Bombay and proceeded to Kalian where his dead body was seen floating in a tank by the police of that district. A statement in writing was found upon the deceased to the effect that he had been induced to commit suicide on ascertaining that he had been placed under suspension.

The defendant is the Mutvali of the tomb. Five defences were raised:—1 That this was not a case of tenancy. 2. If it is, it is not within the purview of the above-cited Act as it involved a question of forfeiture. 3. If it is a tenancy, the plaintiff is not the person contemplated as applicant by the Act, as it (the tenancy, was created by virtue of a title which determined previous to the date of the application. 4. No holding by permission of plaintiff. 5. The allegations of facts said to constitute breaches of certain conditions embodied in Ex. F. denied Mr. Kirkpatrick has put his case in two ways:—1. The defendant holds the land under the plaintiff as mere tenant at will, and that, consequently, plaintiff had an absolute right to determine his will whenever he thought fit; in other words, the defendant was a mere licensee and his licence was revocable at the mere will and pleasure of plaintiff. The tenancy or occupation was subject to certain conditions embodied in Ex. F. which, having been broken by defendant, worked a forfeiture of his interest in the subject-matter of the suit, and entitled plaint

LAWRENCE & MAYO,
(OPHTHALMIC OPTICIANS.)
SPECTACLES to benefit the sight must be exactly adapted for correcting the particular defect for which they are designed.
The first important step, therefore, is to get the refraction accurately defined, and all necessary measurements taken. Spectacles are then prepared specially, in accordance with the requirements of each case, and it is only when thus precisely adapted, that beneficial effects can be relied upon.
Astigmatism, a common enough complication, can only be corrected in this way. Ordinary spectacle vendors never attempt it, or at most can forward an oculist's formula to Europe. In our own Factory, any kind of lens can be cut, at a few days' notice, whether spherical, cylinder, both combined, or bifocal.

COMMERCIAL INTELLIGENCE

BOMBAY MARKET REPORT.

FRIDAY EVENING, OCTOBER 3.

THERE has been more movement in business during the last week than for some time past ; but the element of uncertainty in the important factor of Exchange continues to militate against a return to much activity in any branch of ourtrade. Cotton has been taken much more freely by local spinners, and some business by exporters in forward contracts for the new crop has transpired. Both Wheat and Seeds were in much better demand for export for a time, and prices partially advanced a little ; but the feeling soon became quiet again. Exchange has fluctuated violently under the influence of news regarding Silver, falling, at one time, 1 1-16d. below last Friday's quotation for Bank Demand, and afterwards advancing 1¼d., this evening's closing rates, however, showing a decline of 7-32d. in Bank and ¼d. in Private Paper, compared with those ruling a week ago. Money continues easy, the Bank of Bombay rate remaining at three per cent. Government Paper is unaltered. Freights are dull at previous low quotations. A better feeling and some improvement in rates for manufactures followed the drop in Exchange ; and though this was not sustained in presence of a return to higher rates for remittance, a continuance of the renewed weakness may further improve the market.

MONEY.—The causes which had led to the large increase in the Cash Balance of the Bank of Bombay, as shown in the Statement of Affairs of the Bank reviewed in our last weekly report, continued in operation thereafter with the result of a further addition of 68¼ lakhs to the balance as it stood last Saturday evening, at 419½ lakhs. The actual falling off in the trade demand for money, however, was considerably more last week than in that which preceded it, when a material increase in Government Deposits had helped to swell the balance ; for the increase in Private Deposits during the week covered by the latest Return was 23½ lakhs more than for the previous six days ; and though the diminution in Loans and Bills Discounted was less, the net decrease in trade requirements was 10¼ lakhs more at 17¼ lakhs. In the open market money continues very plentiful : and the Bank of Bombay minimum rate remains at the low level of 3 per cent.

EXCHANGE was weak again on last mail day with a downward tendency, a further decline of 3-32d. from Friday's closing rates having been established. A transaction in Telegraphic, at 1s. 7⅞d. for December transfer, was reported ; but business generally was very quiet. On Monday the feeling was very depressed, and a considerable fall in rates took place —say fully ¼d., from the opening quotations—chiefly caused by the difference in the value of money in England and India. Rates forward were difficult to quote, but sales were reported in private Demand, for January delivery, at 1s. 7 7-16d., and in three months' sight Credits for March, at 1s. 7¾d. The market opened weak again on Tuesday morning, at 1s. 6 15-16d. for Bank Demand, and 1s. 7 5-16d. for three months' sight Credits, or 5-32d. and 3-16d., respectively, below the previous evening's quotations, and the former rapidly declined to 1s. 6½d., at which rate transactions were reported. The market closed with a steadier feeling, Banks declining to buy for forward delivery, and 1s. 6 9-16d. being probably available for ready Demend. On Wednesday the market opened at about Tuesday's closing quotations ; but soon became excited, and within a very short time rates were ½d. higher, and in the afternoon a further advance in remittance was attained at 1s. 7¾d. for Demand, and 1s. 7⅞d. for Telegraphic. A few Mercantile Bills were placed, but generally the rate had become too high for sellers, who held off. Yesterday the market was strong again, not to say excited, in the early part of the day, rates advancing ¼d. for the Bank media of remittance on the morning's quotations. Transactions between Banks, on a considerable scale, were reported in ready Demand, at 1s. 7¾d., and for January delivery, at 1s. 8¼d. and others ; but the market closed with a quieter feeling, at 1s. 7 5-8d. for Bank Demand, and 1s. 8¼d. for three months' sight Credits. To-day the market has been weak and drooping, the Banks generally being most reluctant drawers both for ready and forward delivery. We quote at closing :—

GOVERNMENT PAPER was steady at the close of last week at a slight improvement on the previous evening's quotations, Fours for cash having been quoted to the close at 103 3-16, and the same for the settlement, while for the October account 102 7-8 was the rate. The market was rather firmer again on Monday, and the price of Four per cents advanced to 103¼ for cash and the settlement, while, for the October account 102 15-16 was quoted, these having also been the closing rates. The monthly settlement passed off quietly on Tuesday with a weaker feeling in the market, induced by advices from the other side, and at one time the rate for Money was 3-16 per cent. below Monday's closing quotation, at 103 1-16, the price for next month's account having declined to 102 13-16. At the close, however, a firmer feeling set in, and 1-16 per cent. higher was quoted both for Money and Account. The quiet feeling which generally follows the settlement was noticeable on Wednesdyy ; but rates improved to the extent of 1-16 per cent. in Fours, the price for Money having advanced to 103½, and for Account to 102⅞, these having been the closing quotations. Yesterday the market was firmer in tone, and rates advanced 1-16 per cent. for Money, and ⅛ per cent. for Account in Fours, the closing rates having been 103 3-16 for cash, and 103 for the next settlement, with buyers for time at the quotation. The feeling has been very quiet to-day and rates for Four per cent. have not changed in either position, our closing quotations being 103 3-16 for cash and 103 for the account at the end of this month. 102½ has been the nominal rate for 4½ per cents throughout the week.

Five per cent. Municipal Loan is ½ per cent. higher at 104. Port Trust Bonds are 1 per cent. lower, at 97¼.

SHARES have been a sluggish market throughout the week, and we have few changes to report in quotations. The feeling with regard to Cotton Mill scrip has continued to be in favour of buyers, and any changes in rates on this line since last Friday show a decline. Central India Cotton Mill shares are Rs. 70 lower ; Alliance and Bombay United are Rs. 20 down ; Star of India, New Great Eastern, and Khatao Mucconji are Rs. 15 lower ; Manockji Petit have declined Rs. 12½ ; Jubilee, Rs. 10 ; and City of Bombay, Connaught, Empress, Framjee Petit, James Greaves, and Jamshed, Rs. 5 each. Morarjee Gocouldas, on the other hand are Rs. 10 higher ; and Luckmidas and Western India have advanced Rs. 5. Bombay National Press shares are Rs. 15 lower ; Mofussil Press have advanced Rs. 7½. Delhi and Northern Flour are Rs. 2½ lower.

IMPORTS.

PIECE-GOODS.—The heavy fall in Exchange in the earlier part of the week brought many wholesale up-country buyers of staple Grey Goods into the market, and a larger business at higher rates resulted. But on Exchange going up again during the last two days, buyers retired, and there has been very little doing. Stocks are heavy and increasing, and rates, though somewhat higher, are mostly nominal. A small business was passing in Bleached, Dyed Turkey Red, and Printed Goods at the commencement of the week at rather higher rates, but since then there has been hardly anything doing. The market for Local Goods has been very quiet, with prices more or less of a nominal character. The clearances of Imported Goods from the bazaar during the past week have been 2,000 packages ; and of Local Goods about 1,500 bales.

YARNS.—The market for Imported Twist has kept steady in tone at previous quotations, only a moderate business having been reported during the week. Sales of Bombay Spinnings during the fortnight ending last Monday, reported from Hongkong, were 5,500 bales, and in addition to these, 2,000 bales have been sold at Japan, &c., Prices in China are easier with Exchange the same as before. Both sellers and buyers here are willing to do business at the reduction mentioned in our last, and large sales have taken place in Nos. 10s., 16s., and 20s. ; the clearances for the week being put down at 6,000 bales. The market closed steady at the following official quotations :—

Twist	No.	Gs Mule.	As.	Per lb.
"	"	8s "	"	5 to 5 1-16 "
"	"	10s "	"	4 11-16 to 5 3-16 "

"	"	16s "	"	5 11-16 to 6¼ "
"	"	20s "	"	5¾ to 6 3-8 "
"	"	24s "	"	6¾ to 6 7-16 "
"	"	30s "	"	7 "

METALS.—A large business has been done in Copper during the past week, and prices are 8 to 12 annas higher, with a firm feeling in the market. Yellow Metal has been steady at previous prices with only a moderate business passing. Iron has been taken to only a small extent in a steady market, and on the basis of last week's quotations.

COALS are firm. Sales have been reported during the week of Powell's Duffryn, for September-October shipment, at Rs 18, and for October-November shipment, at Rs. 18¼ per ton ; and Davison's West Hartley, for October-November shipment, at Rs, 17¾ per ton. We quote at closing :—

Powell's Duffryn ..... Rs. 18¼ per ton.
Davison's West Hartley ..... " 18 " "

EXPORTS.

COTTON.—Last week closed with a quiet market for old Cotton, and a firm feeling for contracts in the coming crop, with prices unaltered for ready stuff, but Re. 1 to Rs. 2 per candy. higher quoted for Arrivals ; but only a moderate business passing in the former. At the beginning of this week, however, local spinners came forward, and a considerable business was done from stock on the basis of previous rates in a steady market ; but thereafter the demand slackened, and transactions were on only a moderate scale, though the feeling remained steady on the whole, and previous prices were maintained. Rates for new Cotton were quoted again Re. 1 higher on Tuesday in a firm market ; but on the following day the tone became quiet, and Re. 1 to Rs. 3 per candy less was quoted for forward contracts in the new crop. The principal purchases of old stuff have been in Julgaum at Rs. 165-9 ; Karanja Ginned, at Rs. 180-89 ; Barsee, at Rs. 181-83 ; Akola, at Rs. 155-77 ; Nugger, at Rs. 152-69 ; Bhownugger, at Rs 174]-84 ; Bengal, at Rs. 160-60 ; Compta, at Rs. 155-65 ; Tinnevelly, at Rs. 183-90 ; and Western at Rs. 148-75 per candy. In new Cotton contracts have been made in Bengal, for January delivery at Rs. 156-7 for "Good," and Rs. 161-5 for Fully Good ; and in "Good" Khangaum, for March, at Rs. 189-90 per candy. The market closed this evening with a steady feeling, and rates are Rs. 1 to Rs. 3 higher for new crop contracts than they were a week ago, but unaltered for old Cotton.

Rather over two inches of rain fell at Beawar in the latter half of last week, improving Cotton crop prospects in that district ; and in other parts of the Bengal circle, as well as in two or three of the Oomrawattee districts, there had been a slight fall not reaching an inch in any case. The crop, according to Monday's telegraphic summary, needed fine weather at Nagpore, but from no other quarter did anything like a complaint come ; and the Dhollera circle, where there had meantime been no more rain in any district, and where the fall has been much below the average, the plants were flourishing, being in flower at Wadwan, where the dewy weather prevailing tended to improve the yield. Prospects throughout the Oomrawuttee circle were good, and picking of the first sowing had partially begun at Dhulia, 1½ inch more rain had fallen at Hubli, in the Dharwar circle, nearly making up the average to the end of this month. Telegraphic advices to hand yesterday reported a fall of nearly three inches more at Hubli, with every prospect of its continuance, much improving Cotton prospects. Little further rain had fallen elsewhere and none in the Dhollera circle ; but accounts were generally of a decidedly favourable tenor. Picking had begun in one or two districts of the Bengal and Oomra Circles, and the bolls were rapidly ripening, or being shed, in others. At Broach, the weather continued seasonable, and the plants were advanced in flower ; and the same report comes from several of the Dhollera districts.

The following are to-day's quotations for full-pressed Cotton, with the equivalents in Sterling, Cost, and Freight to Liverpool, via Canal without commission, viz. :—

WHEAT closed last week with a dull feeling and with only a moderate business passing for export on the basis of previous rates, and on Monday, though the tone of the market was less dull, business was still restricted, and prices unchanged. On Tuesday, however, in presence of a heavy drop in Exchange, a considerable business was transacted, and dealers took occasion to advance the rates for Pessy and Delhi by half an anna per cwt. ; but this checked business, and thereafter, with Exchange taking an upward turn again, the market became quiet but steady with only a moderate business reported.

SEEDS were also quiet last Saturday at the quotations given in our last report with transactions on a small scale ; but with the new week a bett er demand, more particularly for Linseed, set in, and the rate for this kind advanced to Rs. 6-4-6 to Rs. 6-7-0 per cwt. The enquiry continued on the following day and considerable purchases were made, the price of Linseed being further put up one anna per cwt., say to Rs. 6-6-0 to Rs. 6-9-0 per cwt. ; but thereafter buyers retired to a great extent, and only a small business was done, while the rate for Linseed declined to our present quotation of Rs. 6-5-0 to Rs. 6-8-0. Other descriptions are quiet, but unchanged in value.

THE BOGUS FAMINE IN IRELAND.

NEW YORK, Oct. 2.

A Committee which has been formed here, and which includes the names of ex-President Hayes and ex-President Cleveland, has issued an appeal for funds towards the relief of the famine in Ireland.

OPINION OF THE TIMES.

LONDON, Oct. 3.

The Times, in commenting on the above appeal, describes it as impudent and mendacious, as no famine exists in Ireland. The article adds that it is merely bidding for the Irish vote.

A CORRECTION.

The remarks made by Signor Crispi in the telegram, dated Naples, 29th September, were issued incorrectly, and should read :—

"Signor Crispi denied that the Triple Alliance had been lately renewed, and said it operates until 1892," &c., &c.

THE AMERICAN TARIFF.

LONDON, Oct. 3.

The Times states that experts in the great industrial centres believe that the American Tariff Bill just passed will not permanently damage British trade which after a period of transition will find new outlets.

TRADE IN ARMS IN AFRICA.

An article in the United Service Magazine from the pen of Lord Wolseley urges the necessity of an International Convention declaring the importation of guns and gunpowder into Africa to be an act of piracy.

THE WARBURTON CASE.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

LAHORE, Oct. 3.

The hearing of the Warburton case was resumed on Wednesday, 1st instant, after its long postponement owing to the serious indisposition of the trying Magistrate. Mr. Warburton's cross-examination continued, and was very exhaustive. Counsel for accused desired to examine Mr. Warburton regarding the clock tower meeting alleged to have been held in Mr. Warburton's favor on 22nd June last, and regarding subscriptions got up for his benefit by the Civil and Military Gazette and the legality of his receiving these. The Court disallowed the questions as irrelevant.

Mr. Goldsbury re-examined his client in re his liabilities. These were at first calculated without interest till the interest accounts were received, when the amounts due to Debi Sahai, Chamba Mull, and Ramanand were supplemented. With this and the interest, twenty-seven thousand approximately represented the total amount of his debts including the interest. The debt to the Falunpore firm was included in the list, but not in Mr. Nicholl's one, as Government only asked for a statement of amounts due to natives.

Yesterday was devoted entirely to recording the evidence of Mr. Nicholl, and the case was postponed to the 4th instant.

THE HARRIS FOOTBALL TOURNAMENT

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

POONA, Oct. 2.

The final tie in the Harris Football Tournament was played off this evening on the Gymkhana ground, in the presence of an exceedingly large crowd of spectators. Their Excellencies Lord and Lady Harris were present during the latter half of the game. Shortly before the play commenced, a heavy rain fell, making the ground heavy and slippery. At the start the Royal Fusiliers had an advantage in playing with the slope, and they made the most of it. They made two splendid rushes down the hill, and succeeded in sending the ball through, amidst the greatest applause and excitement. They also sent a ball through for the third time before half-time was up, but a foul being claimed on the ground that the Fusiliers man had hustled his opponent on the off-side of the goal, was disallowed. When the sides were changed the Loyal North Lancashire men played down the hill, and showed great determination to score. They pressed hard upon the Fusiliers' goal, but the backs were steady at their posts, and repelled the attack again and again. The Fusiliers then rushed off with the ball to the other end, and nearly succeeded in scoring another goal, but the ball struck the post and glanced aside. The North Lancashire then renewed their attack on the goal at the lower end, and after much hard fighting, they scored one goal, but they were not able to equalise matters before time was called. The Fusiliers thus won the match by two goals to one. It is a matter of regret that the men of the Worcestershire Regiment, who were among the spectators, should have seen fit to get up a demonstration against the Fusiliers. They hissed and hooted the Fusilier team on the smallest provocation. Their behaviour was generally condemned.

At the conclusion of the match H. E. Lord Harris addressed the two teams. He said he was glad that much good temper had been shown throughout all the matches in the tournament. He had been on the ground on all the three days the tournament had lasted, and had not heard any bad language used in the matches. The men must naturally have been excited, and it was, therefore, all the more creditable to them that they had kept even tempers. He was especially glad that the Cup which he had offered for competition had excited so much interest and enthusiasm. He said he had been taxed by some of his friends at home with inconsistency in giving a Cup for football, but he did not see that he was inconsistent. However, whether he was inconsistent or not, he congratulated himself that that Cup which he had offered had brought more people on that ground than anything else during the whole season—certainly more soldiers. He was glad that the Cup had created so much interest among the soldiers. Lord Harris remarked that as he owned everything to the success of a soldier he naturally had a kind feeling for all the soldiers. He then congratulated the Royal Fusiliers' team on having gone through such a trying tournament with success ; and congratulated the other team on having got a place in the final match. During the first two days the ground had been very hard and slippery ; but he hoped none of them had hurt themselves. He regretted that the Cup was not yet ready for presentation, but said it would be ready in a couple of weeks. He hoped that in years to come the Cup would excite great interest and enthusiasm among the men of the British Regiments. The men lustily cheered the Governor as he drove away.

THE POONA HORSE SHOW.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

POONA, Oct. 3.

H. E. the Governor opened the Poona Horse Show for 1890 this afternoon, in the presence of a very large assembly, on the old parade-ground, opposite the Wanowrie Lines. Both as regards numbers and in point of quality the present exhibition shows a great and marked improvement upon what we have been accustomed to see for several years past. His Excellency visited the Show in the morning, and went round the back-yard, with some of the judges, to look at all the animals which were shown in the Breeders' Classes. His Excellency carefully noted each one, and was, I have no doubt, much struck with the fact that all the best animals among the large lot were the product of Arab sires, and they were a very fine-looking lot too. It can scarcely be doubted that in order to improve the breed of the country animals we require powerful Arab sires. The English sire does not suit as well as we might wish, and we have again and again seen not only in the Deccan but elsewhere that the horses bred from a Norfolk trotter is a failure. Of course, we sometimes might pick up a really good English thorough-bred sire, whose stock will prove a fine lot, but this is only the case with one in a thousand. The fine grey mare Bhagi was awarded the Commander-in-Chief's Prize as the best horse in the Show, and she would have taken the first prize in the Breeders' Class as well, but for the fact that she was ineligible, because she had carried off the prizes for two previous years In Section 1, among the Fancy Classes, the first prize was taken by the celebrated racer Nadirshaw, who is well-built, though has a defect in his hind legs. Acrobat, who got the second prize, was a grand blood-looking Arab. The first prize for the galloways, suitable as stallions, was taken by Unter the moment he walked into the yard. There was only one opinion about him, namely, that he was the grandest galloway ever seen at any Show. Special, who took the second prize, is a well-known pony, for whom a offer of Rs. 10,000 was made, and was refused three years ago, and about eighteen months ago, after he had injured his leg, he was purchased for Rs. 4,000. He well deserved the prize awarded to him. All the exhibits in this section were considered to be much above the average. The chargers shown were sadly a poor lot. Among the hunters Postman was far and away the best jumper in the lot. He cleared all the jumps splendidly, Bulwark came next, and then Corinthian. Both the latter belong to Dr. Bull, and would, no doubt, have shown up much better than they did if they had not such a very limited course. Several horses refused to take the water-jump, while others threw their riders, some of whom had narrow escapes from serious injury. No prize was awarded for the pony hunters. Gaylass was the only one among the pack, which was worth looking at. Mrs. Westmacott's Australian, which took the prize for ladies' horses, was a large animal, but his movements were very steady and uniform. Messrs. Ludha Ebraim's grey pair of Arabs, which took the prize in Section X., was greatly admired. One of this pair was originally a racer belonging to Colonel Tweedie, and was sold for Rs. 5,000 ; while the other was once the property of the Maharajah of Jodhpore, who paid Rs. 2,500. so that the pair at one time cost Rs. 7,500, Their action was very graceful, and they showed a dash of real Arabs. If they were five-year-olds sound judges believed they would fetch in the English market a thousand guineas. Captain Kuper's pair, though not as well matched, went very well of all. In single horses in harness there was nothing to touch Dr. Young's English horse, which is a perfect trapper. Among the tandems Captain Gott's was considered worthy of the first prize, for they were well-matched and well-trained. Mr. Edwards' turnout ran close in the race for first honours with Captain Gott's. Captain Kuper's single pony in harness stepped out grandly, and the judges had no difficulty in awarding the prize to him. In 1884 the Nizam of Hyderabad exhibited two colts and one filly. All the three took first prizes in the classes, in which they were exhibited. This year the Nizam exhibited only one colt and four stallions ; the colt and two stallions took prizes. In the afternoon rain rather spoiled the Show, and the ground was too wet for the jumping competitions. All the prize-winners paraded in front of Lord and Lady Harris, and his Excellency distributed the prizes. The Grenadiers' Band played during the afternoon. Every credit is due to Major Macpherson for the excellent arrangements in connection with the Exhibition.

VANITY FAIR.

(FROM OUR LADY CORRESPONDENT.)

LONDON, Sept. 20.

In the height of the "silly season" the vagrant reporter is found everywhere. These new Stanleys of our great city leave no inch of this darkest continent unexplored—no monument is too high and giddy, no cellar or sewer too deep to daunt them. It is in the silly season we learn the history of our city and the relics it contains—its rank old graveyards overgrown with such hardy weeds as are able to defy the smuts of centuries ; and its quaint old churches crumbling away for want of timely repair, or worse still defaced by the hand of that most daring of destroying angels, the modern churchwarden, whose progressive spirit requires old inscriptions to be recut, old brasses to be reburnished, and the picturesqueness of moss and lichen-covered walls replaced by ill-carved sandstone and stucco. Unfortunately for those who think the imprint of time adds to, rather than reduces, the value of our memorials, the vagrant reporter is not always on the tramp nor do these devastations invariably occur in the season of empty newspaper columns. No notice was taken by the papers generally when in May, under the plea of urgent repairs, wholesale ravages were perpetrated on the picturesque river frontage of old Chelsea Church, the entire face of the ancient monuments being chiselled away, and the inscriptions replaced ill-spelt and in incongruous modern type. St. Catherine Cree's, in Leadenhall Street, is another of the churches marked out for destruction. Lately an official palace in marble and carved-woods has arisen beside it, and where stood the old door surmounted by a quaintly carved recumbent figure, there is a flaunting doorway of polished brass and marble—a typical nouveau-riche beside the simple grey of its old neighbour, which is even still more accentuated by the efforts to bring it up to date, and hide the ravages of time on the hand of the sundial with a coat of Judson's imperishable gold paint. But these evidences of a church-warden's zeal are a month or two old—they are beyond recall—we must only pray that our memory of them be not kept green, and turn our attention to the latest scheme for the regenerating of the city.

The Paddington Vestry proposes to cut off seventy yards square from the northern end of the disused Churchyard of St. Mary, Paddington-Green, for a play-ground for the infant Paddingtonians—a very praiseworthy object no doubt, as there were no reason for retaining the old cemetery intact in memory of the renowned graves it contains. Mrs. Sarah Siddons, the Queen of Tragedy, rests in Paddington, though her monument stands in Westminster Abbey. In Paddington also lie William Collins, R. A., Benjamin Robert Haydon, the historical painter, George Barrett, a well-known landscape painter, and the eminent sculptor, Thomas Banks, also is commemorated in Westminster Abbey, though through the carelessness of Paddington Vestry his gravestone has been allowed to disappear altogether from the spot where his body lies. But there is no object in the outcry raised against the Vestry's proposed alterations. There could be no better way of perpetuating the memory of the famous dead than by allowing the children of the present to play about their resting place and to read their stories on their tombs. It is only following in our mother Nature's footsteps. Year after year new flowers spring up out of the graves, and so over the dust of one generation patter the little feet of its successors.

Carmen Sylva, the poet queen of Roumania, has been visiting the Earl of Meath, at Kilruddery, his beautiful estate near Bray, Co. Wicklow. Ireland sees very little of its own royalties, but it appreciates distinguished people, and though in its time it had entertained even an Empress, there was a visible flutter of excitement on the arrival of Elizabeth Queen of Roumania. Her appearance, however, disappointed some of the unsophisticated inhabitants. "A real Queen I'm told she is, but there is no differ that I can see between her and any other fine lady." This was the comment when she arrived sans crown, sans sceptre, and sans ermine robe. One can sympathize with their disappointment, when one calls to mind the utter disillusionment it was to be introduced as a child to Lord So-and-So, and find out that he was only an ordinary little man in a very undistinguished shepherd's plaid suit, instead of the red velvet cloak satin breeches, silk stocking, sword, a long curling hat feathers, with which fancy had invested him. Such is gingerbread without its gilding !

It is very much the fashion to quote Carmen Sylva, who appears to formulate her opinions very freely on all subjects, whether rightly or wrongly remains to be seen. Here is an example which shows she has not a very high opinion of men. A woman should possess great virtue, for it often happens that she has to provide enough for both herself and her husband. This is hardly to be reconciled with what one reads of Burmah for instance. According to a person presumably as well informed about things in general as Carmen Sylva, Burmese women have no hope of heaven unless their soul at death passes into the body of a man. There are 200,000,000 Buddhist women in the world, and this is their sole hope of immortality. And yet although Burmese women are admitted to be more honest than men, their teachers maintain that the sins of one woman are equal to the sins of 3,000 of the worst men that ever lived. It is rather surprising to imagine oneself to be a 3,000 man power sinner.

Among the latest novelties in christening robes, the prettiest shade that has been designed for some time is made of transverse bands of Valenciennes insertion and cambric and gathered at the waist in fan flutings with a broad white satin sash tied in a rich bow in front. The tiny bodice also made with transverse insertions had white satin ribbon drawn in V shape from the sash to the shoulders where it finished in pretty bow knots. The only fault to be found with the costume was its extreme fragility. It would require the most delicate handling in order not to crush the fan flutings, and on this account its style was unsuited to middle-aged rampant rowdy babies whose first discovery seems to be the laws of perpetual motion. For the infant in the early chrysalis stage of existence it is admirably suited.

Boncheron, the Empire jeweller of the Palais Royal, is making fascinating novelties for bridal presents. One is a golden grub or caterpillar with pendants of green crystal and diamonds, and is intended to be worn as ornament hanging from a band of black velvet worn round the throat. A blue convolvulus sash pin, with diamond dewdrops on its petals, is specially adapted for fastening the narrow ribbon sashes so much worn lately. But it can also be used as a brooch or pendant according as fickle fashion dictates. A third design is a moonstone heart, set with pearls and diamonds and pierced with a diamond spear—a bold design not so well suited to be used as a bridal gift as to commemorate the ending of some ill-fated love-story. But the day has not yet dawned when the deserted spinster shall be considered the fit recipient of the wedding presents.

There is nothing absolutely new in autumn costumes, the usual effort to force Tartan plaids of amazing size into favour being as unsuccessful as ever. Tweeds and braided cloths seem to be the favorite materials and Astrachan is used as trimming and also in waistcoats. The newest dresses are as close fitting as possible, and the great crinoline spectre which every one dreaded in anticipation has vanished for the present. Ostrich feathers, birds, wings, and nigrettes are supplanting flowers and fruit on the heads of smart Parisiennes, and hats are appearing of soft felt, with broad brims tucked into every variety of shape and trimmed with wide ribbon bows. The "husband-queller" umbrella handle unfortunately seems to be still a necessity, whether because husbands still remain unquelled or designers are barren, is not evident but the ugly weapon still remains. In the list of new things appears a delightful invention in toy barometers, particularly adapted to the taste of the gilded youth of Paris and London. It is the figure of a coryphée on a stout card. The frock of the dancer is made in a gauzy material of so sensitive a texture that it rises or falls in anticipation of damp or dry weather.

Mrs. John Biddulph Martin, once Victoria Woodhull and a candidate for the Presidency of the United States, read a paper at the meeting of the British Association on a subject to which she has devoted much time and attention, the necessity of the improvement of the human race by putting a stop to the deterioration caused by hereditary disease. Her idea is that the marriage of persons physically or morally unsound should be regarded as a crime and put down as unlawful. In the discussion which followed Mrs. Martin's daughter who is an interesting girl of about twenty supported her mother's views. Mrs. Martin is about to start a newspaper in several languages. Mr. A. R. Wallace opposes Mrs. Martin's views in an article in the Fortnightly. He says that the proposal of the writer in the Arena on the improvement of the race by regulating marriage by trained experts is utterly impracticable. Then he explains after what manner he thinks the race will be improved. As a preliminary step, he would settle the social question, and when that was done he thinks over-population would be prevented by the reluctance of women to marry. As there are more boys born than girls, the excess of women over men is only attained by unnatural conditions ; remove these and every woman would have many suitors. Give women a livelihood and a career, so that they are no longer shut up to marry or starve, and they will be much more saucy in their choice of husbands. Every woman would receive offers, and thus a powerful selective agency would rest with the female sex. The idle and the selfish would be almost universally rejected. The diseased or the weak of intellect would usually remain unmarried. Thus when we have solved the lesser problem of a rational social organization adapted to secure the equal well-being of all, then we may safely leave the far greater and deeper problem of the improvement of the race to the cultivated minds and pure instincts of the Women of the Future.

MRS. PRETTIMAN'S DIFFICULTIES.

The Prettimans' leave of six months was all but up. In a month and a half from that date Captain Prettiman was due in India. This fact in itself was sufficient to cause distress to his little wife, but surely not the utter despair that seemed to have seized her. Yet there she sat, facing her own reflection on her toilet-table, the picture of abject misery, having wept unrestrainedly for the last half hour with a total and unusual disregard of the effects on her personal appearance, while her husband paced the room of their not too comfortable lodging in Warwick Road, with lines of care and thought deeply furrowed on his face and brow. The sight of her husband's dejection marked out in every line of his figure, from his bent head to the hands clasped behind his back, seemed to add a fresh poignancy to her grief.

"It's all my fault," she sobbed, "Oh ! how I wish I had been less selfish and extravagant and all."

"Nonsense, my dear, if it comes to that I am just as much to blame," pulling viciously at his moustache.

"Won't that old fossil give us something," she asked.

"Not a sous, worse luck," he replied. And, indeed, things had come to a pretty pass with them. Head-over-ears in debt, there seemed to be no way out of their difficulties. To make matters worse, a brother officer whom Captain Prettiman had foolishly given security for, had announced his total inability to pay up and the money-lender had threatened Captain Prettiman with legal proceedings that would effectually stop his return to India. Tinkers and tailors and candlestick-makers, all appeared to combine just then to make it most uncomfortably hot for them ; to say nothing of what they might expect on their return to India, where the Aryan brother lay in wait for them. They had no private means ; and what, after all, is a Captain's pay ? how many are there who can sympathize with and understand only too well the straits to which our friends were put ? A good officer and a popular and rising man, with a fashionable extravagant and penniless wife, what could you expect ?

"Reggy ! " suddenly exclaimed Mrs. Prettiman, after an interval of silence, while a sudden gleam illuminated her eye.

"Reggy ! I am going out ! No, I am not mad yet, so don't look at me like that ; but I've—never mind—I am going to see Marion." She hastily but carefully bathed her face in a solution of rose-water to remove all traces of her recent anguish, and then began to array herself in her walking gear.

"What are you going to do, dear," asked he, wondering at her change of manner and lightness of heart. "Do nothing rash, child ! "

"Now, Reggy ! haven't you learned by this time that your wife is not the goose she looks. Good-bye, dear—and, Oh," turning back at the door, "don't be alarmed if I am not at home till late this evening." She ran down the steps, and was walking briskly down the road before he could make up his mind what to say to her.

A house in Eaton Square was the end of her journey, at the door of which she knocked, and was ushered into a cosy morning-room. The Honourable Mrs. Percival rose to welcome her visitor with more warmth of manner and expression than was usual with her, cold and stately as she was.

"Oh, Marion," began Mrs. Prettiman, as she flung herself on a stool at her cousin's feet, and crossed her arms on her knees, "you have always said you wished you were rich enough to help us out of our troubles, and now you can, if you please, help just as well without the aid of money. Will you ? "

"Willingly, Clara, as far as lies in my power, you know that."

"Well, then, look here," and Mrs. Prettiman proceeded to unfold her plan.

"Impossible, my dear," she at length gasped. "I couldn't. You couldn't ! "

"Yes, I could, indeed ! why not ? " answered Clara, her eyes flashing with a courage born of her new determination.

"Why should we be such unmitigated snobs ? and then see what we gain ! "

"You gain, you mean. I don't see what I gain by stooping so low to conquer."

"Oh, Marion," softly whispered Clara, "I thought you said you cared sufficiently for me to——"

"Yes, dear," interrupted Marion, "I forgot. Yes, so I would—anything, but can we think of nothing less desperate than this ? And then to keep it a secret from our husbands, too ! What will they say when they know ! "

"We must leave that to chance," drily replied Clara, "if Jack cares half as much for Reggy as he pretends, why he ought to be glad. So then, now, come along. Remember we have only fifteen days more here, and if something isn't done quickly it will be hard lines for us."

"But even now, I can't see how I can help you in this," still objected Marion. "You could do it just as well by yourself, since you are determined on such a course."

"Oh, Marion ! no help to me. Why, what after all am I in their eyes ? Nothing without you, titled and moving in the very highest and most 'select' society. In fact that's nothing to the title. Does the British snobocracy ever forget that, radical or not ? My dear, you underrate yourself ! "

"Is there no other way out of it," mused Marion with her head buried in her hands. "think, my dear Clara." "None, none, and Oh, dearest something must be done. Think of poor Reggy. His prospects—his life shattered !—Imprisoned ! Oh,—I wish," sobbing, "that I hadn't helped to make it worse for him by senseless extravagance. It's clearly my duty to help him out of his troubles. It was only the other day I got that hateful gown from Madame Zurline, which cost 100 guineas and more. And, by the way, Marion," she continued sitting bolt upright, with an abrupt cessation of her doleful wail, "you never told me what you thought of it that night ! And do you know what Lady——now, there ! you look at me as if——as if——"

"Never mind, my dear, I confess that your changeable moods are beyond my comprehension. However, if it has to be done, let's get it over at once," and Mrs. Percival led the way into her dressing-room, where she donned her things."

Captain Prettiman, a week later, sat before an untouched breakfast, mechanically opening a small pile of letters, and laying each aside with a weary sigh when read. His face was drawn and white. Not one of his brother officers roasting in India could have looked half as bad. His wife sat opposite, nibbling at a bit of toast. A close observer would have noticed the nervous excitement she seemed to be labouring under, as she furtively watched her husband. He had come to the last of the letters. "Clara ! " he exclaimed in a thick husky voice, while his arm fell limply to his side and his eyes stared in a glassy dull way before him, " Clara ! It's all right !"

She had risen and stood behind his chair with the letter she had taken from his nerveless hand.

"Thank Heaven," he gasped, "but who can it be ? " he asked. But Mrs. Prettiman only shook her curly head, for all answer.

Who indeed ! he might well ask, who had thus curtly and briefly stated that a large sum, sufficient to extricate him from all his pecuniary difficulties, whether in England or India, had been placed to his credit at his bankers and agents, Messrs. G. G. and Co——?

The Prettimans were to sail in three days, their passages had been secured in a MacIver Liner, Captain Prettiman was busily packing some heavy luggage when his wife tripped in.

"I have just come from Marion's, and I am afraid, my dear, I've rather let ourselves in ! A friend of hers has a daughter who is—is—ailing. Requires change of air, you know, and wanted to know if we could take her to India, and made very handsome proposals, and so I thought, my dear, considering our trials, it might be just as well to—to—agree, you know. They all, in fact, are quite ready to allow us £200 a year, besides her own pocket money, and all that, and so you see I—I—" stammering and blushing as she met her husband's astonished gaze which left suspended his exertions with the lid of a box for the moment.

"Well, it seems an odd business, but if you wish it, as indeed you appear to have arranged it all, there's nothing more to be said."

"What's your friend's ailment ? " he asked when they had been three days out of sea. "Seems to be in tolerably blooming health."

"It's the sea air, my love," demurely replied she.

And, indeed, plump rosy Miss Olney seemed to have very little the matter with her. She was an ordinary girl with ordinary looks and an ordinary style. A trifle addicted to night whoop perhaps, but remarkably in no way but one. She was an heiress, as Mrs. Prettiman took good care to advertise. The rings on her fingers were alone worth a subaltern's ransom. So it surprised no one when four months after her arrival at Poona, where Captain Prettiman's regiment was quartered. Miss Olney married Major Gatley, of H. M.—Hussars, a brilliant match that could not fail to excite the envy of every spin in the Bombay Presidency.

Who was Miss Olney ?

Reader—Mr. Olney—père—was ambitious. Mr. Olney had amassed wealth. Mr. Olney had golden dreams about his only daughter, on whose education he had expended vast sums. Mr. Olney had the newest of new houses, county and town. In short, Mr. Olney lacked nothing but the society he might never hope, try as he would, to attain to. When, therefore, the Honourable Mrs. Percival and her cousin, Mrs. Prettiman, offered this glittering bai to his daughter in exchange for the lucre we call filthy, he snapped greedily at it.

Mr. Olney was their butcher.

ROGER IDDISON.

The Riviera correspondent of the Italian Secolo notifies that suicides are still frequent at Monte Carlo, though jealously concealed by the authorities. The latest victim would seem to be a certain "C. M.," an Englishman, who came to Monaco a few days ago, played at the Monte Carlo tables, and won 70,000 francs, but lost them again soon after. This same "C. M." or "G. W."—the initials are doubtful—is stated to have killed himself by leaping from a high railway bridge.

MR. BALDWIN LATHAM AND THE SANITATION OF BOMBAY.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE "BOMBAY GAZETTE."

Sir,—At first reading, it strikes one as rather curious why Messrs. Hughes and Lancaster, of Chester, should take the trouble to write you a letter, a column and a half long, criticising Mr. Baldwin Latham's drainage scheme for Bombay, and particularly his proposal for raising sewage at local stations by means of pumps working by water under high pressures. But apparently this firm hold a brief for the "Shone" system of pumping sewage at local stations by means of compressed air.

I gather from their letter that Mr. Baldwin Latham's system has been tried only at Esher, in Surrey, where it is a comparative failure. Mr. Baldwin Latham in his report to the Corporation does not give any instances where his system is in practical operation. He merely quotes from his report on the Cairo Drainage Scheme, which is yet in the air, and awfully costly, and in which he proposes to adopt this system of station pumping by water pressure. On the other hand, it is stated that Shone's system has been adopted in fifty places at home and abroad. Every engineer knows that sewage pumps worked by valves will choke or slip, however carefully they may be looked after. We have sufficient experience of this at the Love Grove pumping station.

In your to-day's paper Mr. Edgelow comes forward as Mr. Latham's attorney with a brief in his favour. But apparently the best word he has to say for Mr. Latham is a special report upon the Margate sewerage by two professional men. They do not mention any instances where Mr. Latham's system is in operation, but they go into a dissertation upon the proved value of the transmission of power by water-pressure for large docks and railway stations, and therefore argue that water-power, under high pressures, will be equally useful in sewage pumps. In my idea this is a complete non sequitur. There is nothing automatic about dock cranes ; a man is in charge of each machine, who controls every item of its work by means of valves. What we want in local station pumping is a machine lift that is noiseless and automatic, and that will not incessantly choke up with filth.

I think that Mr. Baldwin Latham's scheme has been so far threshed out that his proposal to lift the sewage of our suburbs at local stations in those suburbs is distinctly good, and should be adopted. By no other means can we get rid of the sewage of Apollo Bunder, Colaba, Dadur, Mahim, Sewree, and Matunga.

But now we are met with the difficulty of ascertaining what system of sewage lift will work smoothly, noiselessly, automatically, cheaply, and without offensive smell. As to all these matters we are entirely in the dark, and Mr. Baldwin Latham's report does not help us. Before, therefore, we can move a step in further expenditure upon sewerage works, this crucial matter must be satisfactorily cleared up. I would suggest that Major Tulloch, who still keeps up his connection with our Municipality, and who has no private interest to serve, should be asked to report upon this special matter, and should, at the same time, send out full particulars with plans of both systems so that we may be put in the position to judge for ourselves. It is evident that our local experts have no special information on this all-important practical detail of Mr. Latham's scheme, for throughout the discussions in the Corporation and elsewhere, I have not once seen it stated that there is a sewage lift, known as Shone's ejector, that it is working satisfactorily in various places, much more that it is considered so good as to have received the honor of adoption by the Special Committee appointed by Parliament to inquire into the best mode of improving the sanitation of the Houses of Parliament.

But I go further. We have spent so many lakhs of rupees, or to put it in English, so many hundred thousand pounds, upon our sewerage that the best plan is to wait till we can be put into the position to adopt the best thing going. No one can blame us for niggardliness in this respect. We have been fully alive to our duty, and have done it. New sewerage appliances are being invented every year, and they are being eagerly and thoroughly tried in our rich English towns. It is better, therefore, that they should take our chestnuts out of the fire for us. The most I would agree to would be this. After we have received and considered Major Tulloch's report, let Mr. Latham send out to us, at our expense, a small installation of the best sewage pump he knows, to be worked by high pressure water-power suitable for a station in our suburbs. Let Mr. Shone send us also, at our expense, a small installation on his system, and let them both be thoroughly tried and tested side by side at our pumping station at Love Grove for a period of twelve months at least. We have ample boiler power there, and these small installations will all the time be doing useful work in taking the place of one or more of our worn-out beam-engine pumps. After we have gained our experience, and ascertained which particular installation best suits our sewage, we can then do what is necessary.—Yours, &c.,

THE GOA ELECTIONS.

The result of the Municipal election at Salsette as given by the supplement to the Ultramar, is as follows :—The Government party had twelve thousand votes, while their opponents, little more than a thousand. The new members are Messrs. Antonio Ligorio da Cunha, Jose Nicolau de Silva Albuquerque, Francisco Xavier Elisbao Vas, Prazeres Barreto, Manoel Agostino Rebello, Pedro do Rozario, Joao de Matta Baracho, Joao Baptista de Miranda, and Ignacio Xavier Trifonio de Patrocinio Godinho.

Mr. Louis Tennyson D'Eyncourt, the senior metropolitan police magistrate, who for the last thirteen years has been one of the occupants of the bench at the Westminster police-court, has tendered his resignation to the Home Secretary, but will continue to hold office until his successor is appointed. Owing to advancing years, Mr. D'Eyncourt's retirement was not altogether unexpected, but the announcement of his resignation was received with the deepest regret by the professional gentlemen and others connected with the court, by whom his ever-courteous bearing and his patient, kindly disposition will long be remembered. Mr. D'Eyncourt was called to the Bar (Inner Temple), on May 1, 1840, and as he was appointed a magistrate (to Worship Street police-court) on August 9, 1851, he has completed over thirty-nine years' public service.

The preparations for the twelfth annual Literary Congress, which will be opened at the Mansion House on October 4th, have now been completed, and it is stated that in point of numbers attending, as well as the subjects discussed, the gathering will be an advance on any of the previous years. The Lord Mayor (London correspondent of the Manchester Examiner) will preside at the preliminary meeting, and will in the evening entertain them at the banquet. The Society of Authors of France and of Germany have appointed delegates to take part in the proceedings, which will extend over seven days. The English Society of Auth

After the fate of Delhi at the Mutiny of 1857, I used to walk to the Kotwali, where prisoners were confined. I there met three or four of the Royal family "Salatin" as they called themselves. Among them was a very chatty little chubby-faced old man. He asked me once why they were kept in durance for the purpose of being tried by a Magistrate. "I acknowledge that I ranked myself amongst your enemies. I never fought, never committed murder. Here we are under close confinement. Atta and dal, some ghi and fuel are given us for our daily food. Look at my hands (very soft, white little ones they were). These hands were never made to cook chappatis. I make them as tough as leather. My hands used to be employed in playing the sitar to the dancing of nautch girls. Why am I not hanged at once?" After a few days he and his brother "salatins" were hanged in a row. They went quietly and boldly up to the gallows, and gave themselves up to the hands of the Provost Serjeant quietly and fearlessly.—Septuagenarian in the Civil and Military Gazette.

A PROLIFIC NATIVE AUTHOR.

We have received a batch of books and work "edited, translated, and composed," by Pandit Waman Shastri S. Islampurkar. Those in Sanskrit edited by the Pandit are:—

1. Advait Brahma Sidhi, by Kashmiraka Sadanand Yati, edited with critical notes, printed in the Bibliotheca Indica Series, published by the Asiatic Society of Bengal. The work was discovered by the editor, while on his tour in Kashmir and Northern India for the purpose of collecting ancient Sanskrit works. The original is in four parts, each part being called a Madgarprahar. The six Astika (theistic) and the six Nastica (atheistic) schools of Oriental philosophy, with their peculiarities and characteristic differences, are shortly described in the early parts of the work. These are then dealt with in detail according to their merits, and with the exception of one they are disproved and dislodged for the triumphant establishment of the Advait philosophy.

2. Tattarya Upanishad with the Bhasya of Shankaracharya, with a commentary by Anand Dnyana, published in the Anandashrama Sanskrit Series.

3. Ganapati Atharwasirsha with Bhashya, published in the same series.

4. Nitı Waktyamrita, with his own Sanskrit commentary, of which about three-fourths has been published in a monthly serial, the Grantharatnamala.

5. Parashara Smriti, with Sayana Madhava Acharya's full commentary, with intervening notes from the commentaries of Nand Pandit and Dharanidhara, together with English and Sankrit notes, various readings, &c., in the press.

6. Navasahasankacherilam, discovered by the editor himself. The work is in eighteen cantos of different metres. The hero of the Kavya is a king of Dhar, of the Paruma (now Pawar) dynasty. He was afterwards called Navasahanka. The story of the Kavya is the account of the marriage of this king with Shashiprabha, a daughter of Nagaraja. It is a historical work, and may add new historical facts to our knowledge of the history of these parts.

The Marathi works translated and composed by the same author are:—

1. Kavyartha Dipika, a copious commentary, with critical notes, on Kalidasa's Magha Duta. This commentary is prepared on the authority of no less than six commentaries in Sanskrit by Mallinatha, Bharata, Sanantana, Ramanatha, Haragovind, and Kalyanamalla. It contains a geographical description with historical and mythological short accounts of all the places mentioned to be on the road described to the Megha. Tae corresponding present names of these places and rivers are also given where possible. Grammatical peculiarities are noted. Critical and explanatory notes are given. At the end of each verse a close translation is also given. The difficult compounds are dissolved. In short the work is intended to supply the student an easy means of learning one of Kalidasa's noblest works even without the aid of a teacher.

2. Shudradharma Tatwaprakash, a close translation, with critical notes, of a Sanskrit work, called Shudra Kamalaka by Kamalakar, Bhat, published by the proprietor of the Nirnayasagar press.

3. Brahat Katha Sagar, a translation of Kathasaritsagar, by Somadeva Bhat, to be completed in 10 volumes of 400 pages (demi-octavo), each of which two are already out.

4. Karuna Raghava, composed on the plot of Uttaramancharita, by Bhavabhoori.

5. Lalitawatsaraja Purwardha (Part I.), drawn from Ratnavali of Shriharsha.

6. Lalitawatsaraja Uttarardha (Part II.), based on Priyadasika of the same author.

7. Charudatta and Vasantasena, based on the plot of Mrichhakatika by Shudraka.

8. Pramai Madhava from Malati Madhava of Bhavabhooti.

9. Vidagdha Parurava, from Vikramorvasiya of Kalidas.

10. Arya Chanakya, from Mudrarakshasa, by Vishakhadatta.

11. Raja Agnimitra, from Malvika Agnimitra, of Kalidas. These eight, from Karuna Raghava to Raja Agnimitra, are Marathi novels, but their plots are taken from the several original Sanskrit works in the form of dramas, which would be more suitable to be represented than for general reading. As they now stand they are intended for general readers, and it is hoped that they will better suit the taste of the present generation in this form than in their original form of dramas. But the greatest possible care is taken to keep close to the original work in their accounts.

12. Sundari and Vasantsena, translated from an original Hindi work.

13. A translation of Kavyakalp Lata, by Amara, a Jain poet. It is a work on prosody, treating in detail of all the items that go to constitute a good Sanskrit poem. It gives all the vrittas (metres), alankaras (figures), &c., their description, their use, and every necessary information for the composition of good poetry.

The author is now engaged in translating into Marathi a big philosophical work in Sanskrit, called Yog Washishtha or Washishta Ramayana by Waimiki. He is translating into Marathi another Sanskrit work, known as Raja Tarangini, an important historical work. He is also preparing in English a dictionary of words, names, &c., of historical and mythological importance, in the Sanskrit language.

BOMBAY PORT TRUST.

The following are Excerpts from the Minutes of Trustees meeting of 30th ultimo.

Submitted letter from the Municipal Commissioner dated 15th July urging the Trustees to make proper roads where tracks have been provided at Apollo Reclamation.

Submitted memoranda from the Engineer, dated 15th and 28th August, stating that the cost of constructing the roads will be Rs. 4,993-3, including paving foot paths, water, tables &c., but excluding the drainage arrangements, and that the annual cost of scavenging, watering, repairing and metalling them will be Rs. 421-12. He states that the probable additional cost of opening up and remaking the roads after construction to allow of the drainage arrangements being carried out will be Rs. 285-1.

Resolution.—The Municipal Commissioner should be informed that the Trustees will at once make proper roads as estimated to cost Rs. 4,993 where tracks have been provided and will undertake to carry out the storm water drains and pipe sewers at the cost of the Trust as soon as the Municipal Commissioner gives them the necessary information as to direction and level &c. if the Municipal Commissioner will, as soon as the work estimated to cost Rs. 4,666 is completed, take the portions of roads over under section 37 of the Port Trust Act and maintain and keep them in repair, light and cleanse them. Should the Municipal Commissioner agree to this, the work may be carried out at once, the charge being made against the one lakh provided annually for the reduction of capital debt or cost of new works chargeable to capital.

Road Government Resolution, Marine Department, dated 15th September, informing Messrs. Shepherd and Company in reply to their petition with regard to the rate charged for water supplied at the Docks, that the cost of water supplied in Bombay compares favorably with similar charges in almost any other port in the world, that to reduce the rates in favour of one shipping Company would be followed by similar demands from other companies with the result of a possible loss in working, and that in view of these circumstances and of the fact that the rate for water in the docks and for vessels alongside and outside the dock walls has been recently reduced from Rs. 3 to Rs. 2-4 per 1,000 gallons, H. E. the Governor in Council sees no good reason for granting the request made by Messrs. Shepherd and Co.

Resolution to be recorded.

The Chicago Inter-Ocean enumerates some curious titles of religious newspapers in the United States. A San Francisco publisher thought that the Christian spirit and brotherly love which his paper doubtless advocates could be best expressed by the title Harmony. Another publisher in Leon (Iowa) a believer, perhaps, in the aggressive religion of former days, would have none of this, but called his paper A mory. At Atlanta (Ga.), the Way of Life had its beginning; the other Way at Cincinnati (Ohio,) while Sheldon (Mo.) gives us words of Eternal Life. There is a Christian Gleaner at Rockford (Ill.); a Baptist Sun in Gainesville (Ga.), and a Baptist Basket in Louisville (Ky.)! Indiana is rich in curious names; Evansville is the home of the Poor Soul's Advocate; Indianapolis of the Iron Gleaner; and Lafayette, of the Battle Ground Gospel-Gong. New Orleans (La.) is honoured by being the abiding place of the Holy Family. Dayton (Ohio) has a Religious Telescope, and Steator (Ill.) possesses a Church Telephone. One would naturally look to Philadelphia, the Chicago paper says, for the Ark, but in this instance we must turn to Baltimore.

MATRIMONIAL ADVERTISEMENTS.

"The recent breach of promise case, has," says a correspondent, "prominently brought before the public how eager the female sex are to enter the bonds of matrimony, caring not what manner of means are used to gain that end. Until the last few weeks some highly respectable daily and weekly papers contained advertisements of this class, one, at times, having nearly two columns devoted to it. Feeling curious as to the class of persons who resorted to this, and to the genuineness of the advertisements, I replied to several of these announcements, of course, writing under an assumed name and a temporary address. To all of my letters I received replies by return of post.

"My first correspondent was a cook, who made an appointment to meet me. I went. She was 34 years of age, very intelligent, good looking, and most respectable connected. She feel deeply in love with me at first sight, and after a walk and a long conversation, she invited me to her master's house a few days later, the family being out of town. I went; she was alone. I was shown over this mansion and left by myself in rooms where most valuable property lay about. In the evening a hot supper was laid out in honour of this foolish, reckless woman's 'betrothal,' as she called it. The party consisted of the housemaid and her sweetheart, myself and the fair advertiser, her master's silver being a feature on the table, and had I, had any dishonest intentions, here would have been a capital opportunity to have helped myself. This silly woman before I left actually wanted the next day to transfer her money in the bank to my name and put the banns up. I did not see her again, but she wrote several times to the address I gave, and even went so far as to advertise for me. The second advertisement I answered was that of a parlourmaid, aged 28, who acted almost as foolishly as the cook and on my second visit produced £30 in gold and wanted me to take care of it. The third was from a widow, aged 34, describing herself as being 'lonely,' who invited me direct to her house a few miles from town. On my arrival at this pretty little villa I hesitated—the place looked so different to what one would expect to see—before I knocked at the door, which was opened by the said 'widow,' who ushered me into the front drawing-room, shut the door and came and sat beside me, telling me a long tale of the numerous answers she had received—in fact, showed me the letters, which were from all sorts and conditions of men, clergymen predominating. She pressed me to stop to tea, as she was alone, her servant being out. To tell the truth, I felt somewhat uneasy, as I fancied I had been trapped, as she was as lovely and as charming a woman as you meet with in a day's march. Her house, which she conducted me over, was most beautifully furnished with every comfort, and, like herself, was as clean and neat as a new pin. She, like the rest, was most anxious for an early marriage, and told me she would request her trustee to communicate with me. Some days afterwards I received a letter from a gentleman holding a high position in London stating the said 'widow' had been his mistress for some time, and that if I would marry her, he would give me the house of furniture and £1,000 to boot. I declined. I had several other correspondents, viz., a solicitor's daughter, a companion to a lady of title, an independent spinster, and a rich widow, all of whom laid bare their family history, connections and private means, to me a perfect stranger. After reading the above, the truth of which I vouch for, can you wonder at the robberies and never-found-out murders that we hear of occasionally entirely through foolish, thoughtless women?'

DO AMERICANS HATE ENGLAND? ANSWER, NO.

A recent remark of Goldwin Smith's, observes a writer in Harper's Magazine, has led to a very general discussion of the question whether Americans hate England. If put in that broad way, the answer must be unquestionably no. The American consciousness of our kinship and debt to England is altogether too strong to permit any feeling that can be called hatred. Indeed nowhere is the historical position and significance of England more completely understood or more proudly acknowledged than in this country. The more intelligent and patriotic an American, the warmer is his recognition of the service of England to liberty, and of nothing is such an American surer than that the American Revolution was really a defence of England against herself and a defence made by the sons of English men. Mr. Higginson reminds us that Hawthorne points out the fact that however Englishmen may love Americans individually they hate them in the aggregate, and Mr. Higginson confirms the substance of the statement, but not the strength of the expression, by his own experience. He perceives a certain surprise among Englishmen when they are pleased with an American, as if they instinctively measured him by some accepted type of his countrymen which is disagreeable. This is undoubtedly true of both countries. It is what Lowell remarks in his essay upon a certain condescension in foreigners. It is, in fact, almost inevitable under the circumstances. If a company of Americans had emigrated long ago to Australia because of the ill treatment of the republic, and after a violent political separation from us had there grown into a vast and prosperous state, of a language, of political traditions, and a general spirit and range of civilisation identical with ours, still regarding us as their mother country, Americans would feel toward their Australian descendants much as the English feel toward us, as if they were an offshoot, a colony, an interesting community founding a new America by "the long wash of Australian seas." That our tone toward them might seem to them condescending would not be surprising. Undoubtedly in our feeling we distinguish between England and Englishmen. At bottom we feel ourselves to be the Greater Britain. The elder son has stayed at home, and lives in the old family mansion, which is antiquated and inconvenient, but it stands in the ancient park, and it is venerable and picturesque. It is invested with the romance of old tradition. In the family portraits, the household maintaining old customs that seem to us outgrown and foolish, and that it any case could not be transported to a new country and a modern house. The older son is a kind of country squire, and seems to us to give himself airs of superiority to the younger, which are not justified by possession of the old estate, an advantage which seems to us to be greatly overborne by the conveniences of our new establishment. If he comes to see us he is apt to estimate everything by the standards he brings, and not by those that he finds. He misses the ivy on the walls, and the wigs of the judges and the Speaker, and the pervading fiction of a visible sovereignty. He thinks the old thing at home is better because it is old and at home.

The younger son grows impatient as he points out how remuneratively he has invested his portion of the old heritage of liberty, and how he has extended the family name and fame, only to hear the reply, "Quite so; it's all awfully jolly; but it isn't England, you know."

No, it isn't England; it is America. Yet how if the younger son should say, what is undeniably true, that the best of America was transplanted from England. "In signing away his own empire over America, George III. did not sign away the empire of English liberty, of English law, of English literature, of English religion, of English, blood, or of the English tongue." It is the same thoughtful observer who says that, who also says that Americans hate England. No, they do not hate England. Say rather that they hate Englishmen who do not understand what English empire is; Englishmen who have not yet learned the significance of another saying of the same observer, "Above all nations is humanity;" Englishmen who, could they have had their way, would have subjected the younger son to the sceptre of George III., when as the Englishman who saved the English empire in the last century said, if England had subjected the colonies, she would have fallen on her own sword. What Americans hate in England is what is not truly England. The bitter alienation comes largely from English conduct in our civil war. But surely England was as much divided then as it was divided between Chatham and George III. The England that we hated then was the England of Bute and Lord St. Vincent, not the England of John Milton, John Hampden, and John Bright. The London Times and the superfine Review did not speak for the England that really created both England and America, but for the England that drove America out, and that subsequently England herself happily suppressed at home! It may seem like reading too far, but it is not England, it is Englishmen who, of alien spirit, sometimes masquerade as England that America hates. John Quincy Adams felt that the masqueraders had permanent hold, and he was always distrustful. But in this day we cannot assent to that view. There is, indeed, a political game always playing in this country, of which abuse of England is one of the counters. But the intelligence, the conscience, and the love of liberty in America are America, and they do not hate the same qualities over the sea, which are the England from which America sprang.

ROYAL MILITARY ACADEMY AND THE ROYAL MILITARY COLLEGE.

The following gentlemen cadets have been awarded prizes as the result of the recent examination for commissions held at the Royal Military College:—Sword of honour, Under-Officer H. G. MacL. Amos; general proficiency, Gentleman Cadet A. J. V. Durell; drill, Gentleman cadet A. J. V. Durell; riding, Gentleman A. Cadet W. R. Smith; gymnastics, Gentleman Cadet A. I. Maling; military administration, Gentleman Cadet C. C. M. Maynard; military law, Gentleman Cadet A. J. V. Durell; tactics, Gentleman Cadet C. C. M. Maynard; fortification, Gentleman Cadet A. E. Sealy; military topography, Gentleman Cadet A. J. V. Durell.

The next examination of candidates for cadetships at the Royal Military Academy will commence in London on November 20, 1890, the medical inspection of candidates taking place at Woolwich on the previous day. The number of vacancies to be competed for will be sixty. Applications from intending competitors, which must be sent to "The Military Secretary, Horse Guards, War Office, S.W.," not later than Oct. 15, cannot be received unless made in strict accordance with the regulations. The successful candidates will be required to join the Royal Military Academy on March 19 next, and will receive all necessary instructions from the governor in due course.

For the first time, perhaps, in the history of the British Army exception has been taken at headquarters to the inferior physique of some of the successful candidates at the recent examinations for admission to the Royal Military Academy and Royal Military College. A notice has been sent to all the cadets in question informing them that their admission to those institutions can only be considered provisional, in the sense that such admission is usually considered to confer upon a cadet a prescriptive right to a commission in the Army on his passing a successful examination at the end of his course at the college. The cadets above referred to, however, have been informed that unless during the time of their cadetship they attain the minimum standard of height and chest measurement required of a recruit for the rank and file of the Army, they cannot be considered as eligible for the grant of a commission. It is quite time, observes the contemporary, some such regulations was enforced in connection with the admission of officers to the Army. It may be perfectly true that the ability of a very short or lean man may be quite equal to, or even superior to that of a tall and well-developed specimen of humanity, but even in the present day, when "cram" reigns supreme, some regard must still be had to appearances in a profession where the ability to bear arms was once the chief and almost the only consideration; and the spectacle of an undersized and puny leader of a company of gigantic grenadiers has already more than once afforded food for scoffers at home and abroad.

THE RACE FOR THE ST. LEGER.

The race for the St. Leger Stakes was decided on Wednesday, Sept. 10, at Doncaster under most favourable circumstances. The weather was gloriously fine, and a very large company was present. From first to last the race was run at a high speed. The chief favourites, Heaume and Sainfoin, both ran prominently until the last bend, when they were hopelessly beaten. The northern-trained colt, Queen's Birthday, never had a chance, and his running was a great disappointment to thousands. At the outset the Duke of Westminster's Orwell went to the front, and in company with Odd-fellow led the field as far as the straight run home. At this point Sainfoin, Heaume, Gansalvo, Memoir, and Blue Green came to the front, and in another moment it was seen that the race was at the mercy of the Duke of Portland's filly, who, going ahead, won easily by two lengths. The Duke of Westminster's Blue Green was second, the outsider Gonsalvo running into third place by a length behind Blue Green, and two lengths in front of the Derby winner, who finished fourth. The pace had proved too much for Surefoot, who dropped behind a furlong from home. He was just at that moment struck on the heels by St. Serf, who was then running very well. This of course spoiled the chance of the last named, and also interfered with that of Queen's Birthday.

CHARACTER SKETCH OF LORD WOLSELEY.

In the September number of the Review of Reviews Mr. Stead's "character sketch" consists of a very appreciative account of the career of "our only General." The following is Lord Wolseley's own account of his interview with Carlyle, to which reference is made in Froude's "Life." "I asked Lord Wolseley" (says Mr. Stead) "what had passed on the occasion when he saw Carlyle. He said he had only seen Carlyle once, when it might be said, he was dying. Carlyle had sent for him, and Mr. Froude was present. He was there for about an hour. 'Carlyle was very weak, so weak that if I slammed the door, said Lord Wolseley, 'I think he would have died on the spot. I said very little, being anxious to hear him speak as much as possible, but I asked him some questions. I asked him what he thought of the future of England.' He said: 'You will find my ideas expressed in the book which my friend there (pointing to Mr. Froude) has written about Cæsar.'" Lord Wolseley (continues Mr. Stead) said he had read it, and was much interested in it. It is an elaborate parallel between the state of England to-day and that of Rome in the time of Julius Cæsar. "And what," said Lord Wolseley, "do you think of the House of Commons?" He said gruffly, "I think that it is a place in which there are 600 talking asses!" When Lord Wolseley rose to go, Mr. Carlyle said "I am old, and you are a young man. You may live to see the day when that talking shop down there will be shut up, and when I pray but that you may be the man to go down and turn the key!" Lord Wolseley is a great smoker. "He told me," says Mr. Stead, "that from a boy he had smoked constantly, and that for many years he always smoked from six in the morning till he went to bed at night, smoking nothing but big black cigars. When he was worried and troubled, there was nothing in the world that soothed him as much as a cigar. He had always kept himself well in hand, and kept the habit under control by every now and then coaxing to smoke entirely for a week or a fortnight at a time. He has now given up smoking altogether, and seems to feel no inconvenience. For a fortnight before Tel-el-Kebir he had never smoked at all, but when the battle was won, as he stood on the bridge of the canal at the camp, he lit his first cigar, and smoked six, one after another, as hard as he could—a kind of tobacco debauch, as he said. His personal habits are abstemious. Although living, perforce, in London society, he has always endeavored to model his life in accordance with the old saw which bids a man be early to bed and early to rise. When he is his own master he goes to rest between ten and eleven, and is up before six. He is a sound sleeper, and can sleep at almost any time and under any circumstances, which is no doubt one great secret of success; for in war, as in politics, the man who cannot sleep might as well retire from the running. 'You cannot put in your time more profitably than in sleeping,' said Lord Wolseley, quoting the saying of a man that may well be taken to heart by all hard workers. As long as you can sleep you can always renew your strength. It is when sleep fails that your balance at the bank of life is cut off." Mr. Stead thinks it not unlikely that when Lord Wolseley returns to England it will be, not as Commander-in-Chief of the Army in Ireland, but as Commander-in-Chief of all the Forces of the Crown.

AGRICULTURAL CONGRESS IN VIENNA.

The proceedings of the International Congress of Agriculture and Forestry in Vienna began on Sept. 1 by the reception of the delegates by the organising committee at the Kur Salon, in the Stadt Park. Delegates were present from Great Britain, Belgium Denmark, France, Germany, Italy, the Netherlands Norway, Roumania, Russia, Servia, Sweden, Switzerland, South Australia, India, Brazil, and Japan. The representative of England is Mr. Ernest Clarke, the secretary of the Royal Agricultural Society of England. Upon the President of the committee, Baron Hohenbruck, Councillor of the Ministry of Agriculture, and the secretary, Chevalier Max von Proskowetz, F.R.G.S., a gentleman well known in England by his explorations in Central Asia and Eastern Russia, has fallen the brunt of the labour of organising the Congress.

The Congress held its first general meeting on Sept 2 in the "aula" of the University, both the ground floor and galleries of which were crowded with members. The chairman, Count Christian Kinsky, opened the proceedings with a short speech, after which addresses of welcome were given by Count Falkenhayn, the Austrian Minister of Agriculture; by Herr Steudel, the vice-Burgomaster of Vienna; the Baron von Hohenbruck, chairman of the committee; and Chevalier Max von Proskowetz, the secretary. Afterwards an address was delivered by M. Prosper Demontzey, the administrator of the Forest Department of France, who pointed out the immense importance of assisting Nature in restoring the forests which the selfishness of man had destroyed, thus creating a real danger to the public, and urged foresters to persevere in their efforts, notwithstanding the indifference and opposition which they at present met with. Another paper by Dr. Ernst Ebermayer, of the Munich University, dealt with the hygienic importance of forests. In the evening a brilliant reception was given to the members of the Congress by the Burgomaster and Town Council at the magnificent Rathhaus. The members of the Congress numbered 1050, including twenty ladies.

The various sections of the Congress began on Sept. 3 with the discussion on the special questions on which reports had been previously prepared by experts. In he agricultural sections, of which Prof. Dr. Nobe was elected president and Mr. Ernest Clarke vice-president an animated debate took place on a paper dealing with the preservation of manure, and eventually a resolution was agreed to recommending greater care in the construction of stables, cowaheds, and manure pits. Herr Schutz then read a practical and useful paper on the substitutes for straw, in which he spoke highly of the value of peat, and suggested the greater use of wood shavings for litter. A prolonged sitting was held by the cattle-breeding section, which, among other subjects, discussed the system of awarding prizes to animals at Agricultural Shows and the signs of milk-producing qualities in the cow. The "escutcheon" appeared to be thought of less importance than it is in England. The reception which Archduke Charles Louis held in the evening at the Angarten Palace was attended by most of the leading members of the Congress.

A sensational episode marked the recent French manœuvres. At daybreak, a village near Cambrai, held by the infantry, was surprised by a cavalry raid. The defending force made a stout resistance, firing from the windows in their shirt sleeves and raising impromptu barricades, and frightened the residents, who did not realise that it was mimic warfare, and hid in their cellars.

HOW TO PLAY SLOWS.

The Rev. J. Pycroft is a veteran cricketer, for he played nearly sixty years ago against Budd. To the September number of Bailey's Magazine he communicates some interesting particulars of the leading ways of the old slow bowlers, who were often no doubt very

THE DIFFERENCE BETWEEN "SLOWS" AND UNDERHAND BOWLING.

I have often (he writes) heard the term "slows" used as a general one for all underhand bowling. This is a mistake; for the fastest of all bowling has been seen among those who bowled in this old fashion. Osbaldistone, the "Squire," would bowl the game away in byes, and could defy all England, in the single-wicket matches of the time, until Mr. Ward brought up from Brighton, to beat him, Browne, who, like Pilch and T. Hearne, was by trade a tailor. Browne's was an undetected "jerk;" for he would confess that after a match his side was black. Next in pace to Browne was Mr. Kirwan, who when a boy at Eton bowled all ten M. C. wickets. His pace was a great surprise, for he was slight and little and hardly could have weighed 9st. Lord Bessborough said that Kirwan was the fastest bowler he had ever seen—faster than Mr. Harvey Fellowes, for he had a long stop to both. As regards a certain Etonian, less known in great matches, here is the account of W. G.'s brother, Henry Grace. "One day, when his pace had frightened nearly all our eleven, a young farmer came boldly forward and said, 'Never mind, I'll have a go at him!' The first ball took the bat out of his hands right through his stumps." Those were queer "slows" indeed! No round-arm bowlers could compare in pace with these. Mr. E. H. Hartopp, who was called Fellowes's long-stop, said he could hear the ball humming like a top, and it would take fourpenny-bits of skin off his breast-bone. When the ground was bad, as Lord's used then not unfrequently to be, no one could play Fellowes's bowling. So, at least, Box said, and it proved to be the case when Fellowes bowled against the Players.

DEGREES OF PACE.

Before the round-arm bowling came in there were all degrees of pace, but as to slows or lobs, these you will find prevailed with Lord Frederick Beauclerk Beldham, Budd, and Lambert for the first twenty or twenty-five years of this century. In the old scorebooks these are the names seen as bowling in all the great matches. These four men bowled slows proper; but, like those of Mr. Goodrich, of the Free Foresters' Club, and Clarke's they were too fast safely to run in to. I call Mr. W. W. Read's "lobs," and a man could go in to every one of good length if—yes, if—he knew the way. Since these period slows held their own for twenty years. No one of late years seems to have taken up slows, except casually; and, therefore, when attempted it has been with little success. Having, nearly sixty years ago against Budd, I can claim to have paid no little attention to slows; and having conferred with Clarke, and also with Wells (who was second to no man against slows), I claim to know enough about it to be able to see plainly where the present generation is at fault. By Humphrey's bowling Sussex beat the Australians; and when I saw them treating W. W. Read with so much respect I thought that they had not practised with slows since. If so they were wise to be cautious.

A "DEMON" OF OLD TIME.

Never was there a more deceiving bowler than Clarke. He had one great art of bowling—namely, to bowl two balls quite different which still looked the same. This is done by more or less of spin—conflicting and retarding the ball in the air. For, remember, a ball can be made to turn in the air. Now, what is required with good slows is both curve and a certain degree of pace—two things hard to reconcile, for without pace you have a mere lob; and a man has time to go in and hit every one pitched far enough up for a good length ball. To combine sufficient pace with curve you must learn to deliver by a kind of chuck from the hip, and deliver while still running, without any stop at the crease. By so doing you add the momentum of the body to the said chuck of the hand. This was the style of delivery I saw in Budd and in Goodrich, as well as in Clarke. Goodrich told me that he was habitually practising a spin or twist of his hand, so that the ball might leave it naturally without interfering with his accuracy of pitch. Observe that spin not only turns the ball from the bat, but gives an abrupt and high rise to the ball. Budd once bowled me out with a ball which rose over my shoulder, and yet pitched on the wicket. Tired bowlers lose this abrupt rise by spins, as also do old players.

HELIGOLAND UNDER THE NEW FLAG.

Mr. W. G. Black writes to the Pall Mall:—When three weeks ago, I landed for the first time under the German flag in Heligoland, I had resolved that, so far as was possible, I would not discuss the cession with Heligolanders, and that should any Heligolander ask my opinion I should advise him to become a German subject as soon as possible rather than remain a British subject under the changed conditions. To those resolutions I adhered, and on my return to-day I cannot recall any encouragement given by me to any Heligolander to be otherwise than contented under the new regime. I could not, however, but come to know what the Heligolanders themselves thought of the transfer of their green-red-white island. The richer innkeepers are all extremely pleased with the cession. They expect more customers. The shopkeepers, however, when they are not their own landlords, are not so well pleased. Under the existing laws no alien can hold land. Now, almost incredible sums are being offered by Hamburg speculators for properties under the supposition that the German Government will hold that a German has as much right to own land as a born Heligolander. If this happens, then, the Heligolanders say, rents will be raised; shopkeepers from the Continent will come in and the Heligolanders will be squeezed out. The third class of inhabitants (who form the great bulk of the population) are the fisherfolk. They are practically unanimous against the new rule. They also fear being squeezed out, and with even more reason than the shopkeepers. They live, in the main, by acting as ferrymen to the pilots, as ferrymen to the Dune (or Sandy Island) and as pleasure sailsmen. I understand it is quite settled that a great dam is to be built between Heligoland and the Dune, a mile away, with the view of creating two great harbours. The Heligolanders, of course, say such a dam is possible; but they forget, first of all, that money and civil engineering can do anything; and, secondly, that until the 31st of December, 1720, Heligoland and the Dune were connected by a cliff of such thickness that the Dune so late as 1714 had a battery there. Then the Heligolanders go on, the diversion of currents will be so strong that the Dune will be swept away. This remains to be seen. They add that if it is not swept away, at any rate the construction of a dam—which will be in effect a fortress—and the fortification of the Dune will destroy Heligoland's attractions as a bathing place. Here they forget that Germany does not want Heligoland as a bathing place, but as a naval stronghold, and the interests of Heligoland boatmen are certainly not to the first consideration. I endeavour to state the more prosaic aspects of the people's feelings, and I shall not do more than mention that, above all, the loyalty which eighty years of just and kindly Government by Great Britain have induced is not to be lightly swept out of mind. The Government at present is conducted on British lines; for, although there are two Governors, they altogether exercise about the same functions as the late Governor and Magistrate. The social life of Government House is, however, a thing of the past. The two Governors live together in Government House. Colonel Whitehead's house is being converted into a new post office. The great danger of Germen rule is obviously its want of consideration for the difference of nationalities. Heligoland should be treated by Germany much as we treat the Isle of Man. Its local peculiarities should be respected, and none of its people's insular and Frisian pride wilfully misunderstood. The probability, however—nay, the certainty—is that the new Governments will treat Heligoland like a postal district of Berlin. It has already begun the process. The policemen of English rule are retained in German uniforms for the present, but the sailors who replace the coastguard are not, as they were, married men, and it can be no secret that, however courteous and observant their commandant may be, his men, or some of them, are inclined to consider themselves masters of the new country.

None of the hotels or cafes have hastened to change their names: "Queen of England," "Princess Alexandra," &c., &c.—there they all stand with the old signs. A curious thing is said to have occurred as to the lighthouse. One is told that it was forgotten by both the high contracting parties that it did not belong to England, but was the private property of Trinity House. Heligoland without the power to extinguish the lighthouse in case of war would be useless indeed, and I understand the sale has been negotiated for £15,000; certainly a very handsome price for an old and somewhat inferior lantern. Apropos of war, some old woman has prophesied that Heligoland will next be French and then English again. No doubt before then many a man's blood will be shed, but more improbable things have happened. It is very doubtful whether Germany will really strengthened her position by the acquisition of Heligoland. It will be the first point to be attacked by a French fleet, and to defend it will require all the resources of a strong navy—while to take it and hold it in the very eye and view of all Germany would be for France a sharp blow in the cause of Alsace and Lorraine. This entirely bears out what was pleaded in vain in the House of Commons that by ceding Heligoland—which in our hands would always be neutral—we materially changed the conditions of the next strife between France and Germany. Heligoland has seen one sea-fight. It is to be feared she may witness many another.

THE TROOPSHIPS "JUMNA" AND "ORONTES."

It is by no means certain, says a home paper, that the troopship Jumna, as to whose future destination considerable correspondence has taken place between the Transport Department and the India Office, will be sent to Bombay, to be stationed there as a hulk. The Admiralty consider that to put this fine troopship to such a purpose would be a waste for which there is no justification, and it is possible the Jumna may yet be recognised and fitted with new boilers, and then be sent to Bombay. In that case she will remain there as a receiving ship, and be ready in the event of any emergency to convey troops to Burma or elsewhere.—The Orontes, troopship, Capt. M'Kechnie, has been ordered to prepare for the conveyance of military details to Gibralter, Malta, Alexandria, and Cyprus. She will leave Portsmouth on Sept. 24, and Plymouth on Sept. 25, embarking at Plymouth a draft of two officers and sixty men of the 2nd Batt. Dorset Regt. for Egypt, and three officers and 204 men 1st Batt. Essex Regt. for Cyprus. The Orontes will return Portsmouth on Oct. 30.

BURGLARY INSURANCE.

An advertisement which recently appeared in the home newspapers called attention to two facts specially interesting to a large number of people at this period of the year, says the Globe. One is that the burglary season has opened in a vigorous manner, and the other that the timid housekeeper may set his mind at rest—at all events as regards possible loss—by insuring himself against these depredators, just as he does against fire. To many persons this latter fact may come as a piece of news; for though burglary insurance is no new idea, it is only within the present year, that it has been systematised and brought within the range of everyday utility. Everybody knows, of course, that Rob Roy was, in his own peculiar way, a notorious insurer, against burglary. It was not called burglary in those days, but in effect it was much the same sort of thing. The point in which his system differed from that which has recently come into operation was that he used to get the goods returned, should one of his clientele be raided; whereas under the present-day insurance system a monetary consideration has to suffice. But he did not trouble about actuarial calculations in order to bring down the premium to the irreducible minimum. His was a free and easy method which would not satisfy modern requirements; and it is needless to say that the Security Company which is now taking up the burglary branch of the insurance business goes upon very different lines.

With the exception of Rob Roy and his imitators, it does not appear that burglary insurance ever flourished before the present year of grace. In the Bubble period it, of course, figured largely. The ingenious company-floaters of that era, who offered to insure against lying, against female inconstancy, against bankruptcy, and an immense number of the ills that flesh is heir to, were not likely to overlook the omnipresent burglar. Glancing over a chronological table of the schemes of those prolific days, one sees a variety for insurance against robbery, fraud and theft of all k

ONLY GOLD MEDAL for Whiskey, PARIS, 1889.

BUSHMILLS WHISKEY is absolutely pure, nothing but the best Malted Barley being used in the manufacture.

Trade Mark.

Take a little trouble to try Old Bushmills. It will be a more serious trouble afterwards to be noted for keeping the finest Whiskey round. To ensure purity it is advisable to get that bottled by the Company, the labels, capsules, and corks bearing their name. A dozen case contains two gallons.

OLD POT STILLS ONLY.

600 Opinions. 600

W. Sinclair Thompson, M.D., F.R.C.S., writes from London—"I have appreciated your old Whiskey very much, and recommend it to my patients."

"Land and Water" says—"Of all spirits, Whiskey is the most wholesome, and one of the finest 'brands' of that spirit I have ever tasted is Old Bushmills."

"The County Gentleman" says—"Connoisseurs giving Old Bushmills a trial cannot fail to appreciate its mellowness and flavour."

"Licensed Victuallers' Gazette" says—"We have sampled specimens of Old Bushmills Whiskey, and are quite of our old friend Captain Mayne Reid's opinion, that it has no superior."

"The Court Circular" says—"Old Bushmills can be specially recommended for its exceptionally pleasant flavour."

PARIS EXHIBITION. OLD BUSHMILLS BEAT ALL. JUDGES AWARDED IT THE ONLY GOLD MEDAL FOR WHISKEY.

Edmund Yates,

"His Recollections & Experiences,"

Vol. I., page 251, says:—

I COULD not afford good wine, and would not give bad; but there was some Irish Whiskey which I procured through Mayne Reid ("BUSHMILLS" was its name), which was highly esteemed.

Writing in the World of Dec. 22, 1886, he says:—

MENTION made, in certain Reminiscences of mine, of a pleasant and wholesome alcoholic stimulant, called "Bushmills Whiskey," has led the proprietors of the famous Distillery to assure me that their alcohol is still extant in its pristine excellence, and, to confirm the assurance, send me a specimen of their produce. "All taps," we are assured by Mr. Stiggins, "is wanity;" but I am glad to find that a favourite "wanity" of my youth is as mellow and as innocuous as when first introduced to my notice by my old friend, Captain Mayne Reid.

The Bushmills Company will be glad to hear from firms who keep their Whiskey, or who wish to keep it, so that their names may be added to this Advertisement if desired.

DR. DE JONGH'S
KNIGHT OF THE ORDER OF LEOPOLD OF BELGIUM
KNIGHT OF THE LEGION OF HONOUR
LIGHT-BROWN COD LIVER OIL

THE PUREST. THE MOST PALATABLE. THE MOST DIGESTIBLE.
THE MOST EFFICACIOUS.

Incontestably proved by Thirty Years' Medical Experience to be Cod Liver Oil which produces the full curative effects in CONSUMPTION AND DISEASES OF THE CHEST, THROAT AFFECTIONS, GENERAL DEBILITY, DISEASES OF THE SKIN, WASTING DISEASES OF CHILDREN, RICKETS, AND ALL SCROFULOUS DISORDERS.

SELECT MEDICAL OPINIONS.

SIR G. DUNCAN GIBB, Bart., M.D.,
Physician to the Westminster Hospital.
"The value of DR. DE JONGH'S LIGHT-BROWN COD LIVER OIL as a therapeutic agent in a number of diseases, chiefly of an exhaustive character, has been admitted by the world of medicine; but, in addition, I have found it a remedy of great power in the treatment of many Affections of the Throat and Larynx, especially in Consumption of the latter, where it will sustain life when everything else fails."

DR. SINCLAIR COCHILL,
Physician to the Royal National Hospital for Consumption, Ventnor.
"I have convinced myself that in Tubercular and the various forms of Strumous Disease, DR. DE JONGH'S LIGHT-BROWN COD LIVER OIL possesses greater therapeutic efficacy than any other Cod Liver Oil with which I am acquainted. It was especially noted, in a large number of cases in which the patients protested they had never been able to retain or digest other Cod Liver Oil, that DR. DE JONGH'S oil was not only tolerated, but taken readily, and with marked benefit."

JOSEPH J. POPE, Esq., M.R.C.S.,
Late Staff Surgeon, Army, Professor of Hygiene, Birkbeck Institution, London.
"I found during my Indian experience that the worth and character of DR. DE JONGH'S LIGHT-BROWN COD LIVER OIL remained unchanged by tropical heat or foreign climate, and it was, from its uniformity of character, particularly adapted for long-continued administration. The value of 'hydro-carbons' in all debilitated states of the system is now becoming thoroughly recognized; and it is, without doubt, from the animal oils and fats, rather than from their vegetable substitutes, that we may hope to derive the surest benefit. The Oil of DR. DE JONGH places in everyone's reach a reliable and valuable remedy, one that cannot be too widely recognized."

DR. R. O. CROFT,
Author of "Handbook for the Nursery."
"DR. DE JONGH'S LIGHT-BROWN COD LIVER OIL is almost a specific in many of the Diseases peculiar to Infancy and Childhood, and I have seen marked benefit produced by its use. Patients prefer it to the Pale Oils, and are able to retain it more comfortably."

DR. DE JONGH'S LIGHT-BROWN COD LIVER OIL is supplied ONLY in IMPERIAL Half-Pints, Pints and Quarts, sealed with BETTS'S Patent Capsule impressed on the top with DR. DE JONGH'S Stamp, and on the side with his Signature, and the Signature of ANSAR, HARFORD & Co.; and bearing under the wrapper a Label with the same Stamp and Signatures.

WITHOUT THESE MARKS NONE CAN POSSIBLY BE GENUINE.

FAGGED, WEARY & WORN OUT!!

Anyone whose duties require them to undergo mental or unnatural excitement or strain should use

ENO'S "FRUIT SALT."

It allays nervous excitement, depression, and restores the nervous system to its proper condition (by natural means). It is the best preventive and cure for biliousness, sick headache, skin eruptions, impure blood, pimples on the face, giddiness, feverishness, mental depression, want of appetite, sourness of the stomach, constipation, vomiting, thirst, &c., and to remove the effects of errors of eating and drinking.

DRAWING AN OVERDRAFT ON THE BANK OF LIFE.—Late hours, fagged, unnatural excitement, breathing impure air, too rich food, alcoholic drink, gouty, rheumatic, and other blood poisons, biliousness, sick headache, skin eruptions, pimples on the face, want of appetite, heartburn, accidental indigestion, sourness of the stomach, &c., use ENO'S "FRUIT SALT."

OUT OF SORTS!—Extract of letter from a Provincial Chemist:—"We have a great sale for your 'FRUIT SALT.' Indeed, I should not like to be without it for my own use; I seldom, if ever, take anything else when out of sorts."

PHYSICAL AND MENTAL TOIL.—"I am working from between six and seven in the morning until ten or eleven at night, and on Sunday morning I wake up as usual a little after six o'clock; but I am glad that it is a day of rest. My head feels large and heavy. I take two teaspoonfuls of your 'Fruit Salt' half an hour before breakfast, and after breakfast it has removed the load from my head, and I feel 'like a giant refreshed with wine.' For years I have received much benefit from your 'Fruit Salt.' I have recommended it to many.—Yours, &c., A SON OF TOIL.—March, 1885. Mr. J. C. ENO'S."

IMPORTANT TO MISSIONARIES, NEW GUINEA.—"How I wish I had a dozen bottles of ENO'S 'FRUIT SALT'! It is the best medicin I ever had, and the most refreshing drink I have yet tried."—Explorations by Rev. J. Chalmers, London Missionary Society.

"THOUSANDS OF MILES IN INDIA."—ENO'S "FRUIT SALT" I have found for many years of the utmost value in the hot and dry seasons, also in the monsoons. I have travelled some thousands of miles in India during the last thirteen years, and in all the various changes of climate I have always found ENO'S "FRUIT SALT" the most refreshing beverage I could get, especially after long heavy marches and other fatiguing duties to which the British soldier of late has been exposed to. I am yours, &c., A Warder, at Central Military Prison, Poonah. Bombay, Jan. 30, 1884. To Mr. J. C. ENO.

CAUTION.—Legal Rights are protected in every civilised country. Examine each bottle and see that the Capsule is marked ENO'S "FRUIT SALT." Without it you have been imposed on by a WORTHLESS IMITATION. Sold by all Chemists, &c. Prepared only at ENO'S "FRUIT SALT" WORKS, Pomeroy St., London, S.E., by J. C. ENO'S Patent.

Digestion is invigorated. The Appetite increases wonderfully. The bowels become regular. Sleep becomes calm and refreshing.
